

100,000 Angry Housekeepers

Wish to know why the Royal Baking Powder Company withhold from the Public the simple intelligence that their powder contains AMMONIA?

Eminent Physicians and Chemists

SAY THAT

AMMONIA IS A DANGEROUS DRUG!

In any human diet, its use in food is an offense to Nature.

Tartrate of Lime is found in all Cream of Tartar. It is a natural product, of vegetable origin, derived from the wines which produce Cream of Tartar. It is a constituent of the grape, as well as other fruits.

The idea that Tartrate of Lime can be converted into lime at the temperature of the oven is the rankest nonsense, and could only originate in the brain of one totally devoid of chemical knowledge. The "Royal" contains it. It has no injurious action upon the system.

The crying of "Lime" in the way the Royal Baking Powder Company do is another trick to extricate themselves from the use of the powerful drug Ammonia in their powder.

DO NOT TAKE OUR WORD FOR IT!

Every housekeeper can prove the truth of our statements by placing a can of the "Royal" top down on a hot stove until heated, then remove the cover and smell—"AMMONIA." The strength of our powder can be proven by the consumers' reliable test.

THE TEST OF THE OVEN.

DR. PRICE'S CREAM BAKING POWDER is superior to the "Royal." It contains no Ammonia. The "Royal" contains Ammonia. The use of Ammonia in articles of food I believe to be injurious.—ELIAS H. BARTLEY, B. S., M. D., Chemist of the Department of Health, Brooklyn (N. Y.), May 20, 1884.

THE HUSBAND'S OPPORTUNITY.

It is doubtful whether the male head of a family often appreciates the opportunity he has for diffusing sunshine at home, or comprehends how much of gloom he can bring with him in a troubled face and moody temper from the office or street. The house mother is within four walls from morning till dinner time, with few exceptions, and must bear the worry of fretful children, inefficient servants, weak nerves, and unexpected callers. And she must do this day after day, with monotonous regularity. The husband goes out from the petty details of home care. He meets friends; he feels the excitement of business competition; he has the bracing influence of the outdoor walk or ride. If he will come home cheerful and buoyant, his presence is like a refreshing breeze. He has it in his power to brighten the household life, and add to the general happiness in a way that no man has the right to forget or neglect.

A REASONABLE EXCUSE.

"This is a pretty time of night for you to be getting in, Mr. Crimmonbeak!" exclaimed Mrs. C., when her husband returned home late the other night, slightly under the influence of a full moon, or something more exhilarating. "Why (hic) love, I don't see anything the matter (hic) with the time," was the husband's reply, vainly trying to get his optics on the family timepiece. "Well, if you could look straight enough, Mr. Crimmonbeak, you would see that it is half-past 12 o'clock. You should have been home full two hours ago." "Impossible, love, (hic) impossible for me to be home full two hours ago." "And why was it impossible, I should like to know?" said the better-half, looking as though she could chew her husband up in her anger. "Because," explained the jolly man, "because (hic) I wasn't full two hours ago."

The value of electricity in cases of minor surgery was recently demonstrated at Portland Me. A lad of that place, named Ulmer, was wounded in the hand by a slender piece of steel, which had imbedded deeply in the flesh. The surgeon who was called in thought it would be necessary to make an incision two inches long in order to extract the metal. But he determined first to experiment with electricity. Taking the boy to the electric light station, he inserted an instrument in the wound bringing it in contact with the steel. The electric current was applied to the instrument, and when it was withdrawn the steel was extracted with it, leaving only a small orifice to be healed, and so preserving the hand.

A doctor of divinity, of most irreproachable orthodoxy, sends us the following: A lady who lives in Iowa, and is a devout Episcopalian, owns a parrot which occasionally visits a factory where improper language is sometimes used. One day this lady entertained at dinner her bishop and other clergy, and the parrot was annoyed at not receiving the usual attention. He repeatedly called his mistress, "Laura! Laura!" At length the lady turned to him and said, "What?" The parrot replied, "It is raining like hell, Laura." Tableau.

The uniform of an up country girl's base ball club consists of a red cap, white jacket, blue trousers and black kid shoes. Should a foul ball hit a young lady upon the trunk portion of her uniform, we presume it would be called a baggage smasher. But what is she going to do without an apron to catch the ball in anyway?

"So hot water is a great cure, is it? Well, I shan't let any of my boarders get sick for want of that medicine. Just put another gallon of hot water in that oyster soup, Maria, and I guess you had better take out the oyster now. It might be too rich."

It is not for man to rest in absolute contentment. He is born to hopes and aspirations, as the sparks fly upwards, unless he has brutified his nature and quenched the spirit of immortality which is his portion.—Southey.

The possibility of obtaining illuminated gas in considerable quantities from the droppings of cows and horses has been demonstrated to the French academy of sciences by M. Gayot. The process does not lessen the value of the fertilizer.

The highest salary received by any woman in the English telegraph service is $1,250, and only a person who has served ten years as matron can have that.

FASHIONS FANCIES.

Velvet girdles are worn with Moliere vests.

Figured materials are now made up in finely plaited skirts.

Many elegant basques are of black satin, closely dotted with cut jets.

A beautiful silky fabric is the slipped mail, and is appropriate for morning dresses.

Basques of thin fabrics have shirings down the centre-back and a full Moliere vest in front.

A novelty for tabliers, vest and sleeves is a fine canvas covered with embroidery of the same color as the ground.

A white silk broadened sash, fringed all around, will be much worn this summer with white costumes of all materials.

Scarf draperies are again in vogue, and are liked with combination toilets. When the tablier is plain the scarf is broadened.

Skirts made of several embroidered flounces have a row of insertion as a heading to each, or the flounces are otherwise well lapped.

A stylish outwary jacket of blue, garnet or black Austrian velvet has a vest of white material, and fastens with three buttons at the top.

Vital Questions.

Ask the most eminent physician Of any school, what is the best thing in the world for quieting and allaying all irritation of the nerves and curing all forms of nervous complaints, giving natural, childlike refreshing sleep always? And they will tell you unhesitatingly "Some form of Hops!"

CHAPTER I.

Ask any or all of the most eminent physicians: "What is the best and only remedy that can be relied on to cure all diseases of the kidneys and urinary organs; such as Bright's disease, diabetes, retention or inability to retain urine, and all the diseases and ailments peculiar to women?"

"And they will tell you explicitly and unphatically 'Buchu.'"

"What is the most reliable and surest cure for all liver diseases or dyspepsia, indigestion, indigestion, biliousness, malarial fever, ague, &c., and they will tell you: 'Mandrake or Dandelion!'"

Hence, when these remedies are combined with others equally valuable and compounded into Hop Bitters, such a wonderful and mysterious curative power is developed which is so varied in its operations that a disease or ill health can possibly exist or resist its power, and yet it is Harmless for the most frail woman, weakest invalid or smallest child to use.
